How can we impose fines and criminalization onto those who have no means of receiving stable housing and support? Do you really believe that the solution to this issue is to attack those who have quite literally nothing? Why don't you instead decide to work with the city and use our funds and tax dollars to increase accessibility to housing, healthcare, and food security, in order to prevent trash ending up in the water like you're saying. And while you're at it, take a look into the corporations in San Jose that are working to jeopardize our environment with their emissions and contributions to such a destruction in Palestine that would allow for a complete decimation of the environment as well as its people. Why don't we focus on the real problem here instead of attacking those who are quite literally just trying to survive? Please think about that when making your decision.
